Physiotherapy advice and exercises after a 3rd or 4th degree tear during childbirth
Ways to look after yourself and help the healing of the tear:

1. Keep the area clean:
   - Bath or gently shower daily.
   - Change your sanitary pad regularly.
   - Rinse with water from front to back after going to the toilet and dry carefully.

2. Avoid constipation. Drink at least 2-3 litres of water every day and eat a healthy, balanced diet (fruit, vegetables, oats, etc.).

3. Avoid lifting anything heavier than baby for at least 6 weeks.

4. Do pelvic floor exercises within your comfort range. (See our leaflet entitled “Your recovery after childbirth”.) Start these gently the day after birth. They will aid the healing process and help reduce perineal pain by increasing the circulation of blood to the area.

5. Physiotherapy treatment
   Whilst you are on the postnatal ward a member of the physiotherapy team will visit you to discuss the above exercises and advice in detail. They will also arrange an outpatient appointment in approximately 8 weeks, if necessary.

If you miss seeing a physiotherapist before you are discharged (e.g. at a weekend, on a bank holiday) you should be contacted by the department to arrange outpatient treatment.
